Memories by Kate Pasma on Prezi

Poem 1. Memories Some are good, They reside in your grasp. Afraid of letting them go, You cherish them in your mind's clasp. Then there are the ones, Which never want to leave. As bad as they are, Forever through you, they'll weave. Then come your regrets, Those you wish never were. Without whom your humanity, Would appear to be bare.

The quote supports the theme that, even in the midst of an unfamiliar place, memories can help us to feel comfortable. The use of the word "alien" expresses how the speaker feels out of place in New York City; however she feels comforted in the fact that her memories, "remembered beauty," helps her to recall her beloved Russia and feel a sense of belonging.
